

In the sunroom of a home in Maryland (this page), a Flensted mobile adds quiet motion to the room. The living room of a house in Albemarle County, Virginia (opposite, top), boasts detailed window treatments that dress up the room. Mount Vernon Plantation toile fabric from Brunschwig & Fils and antique furnishings complete the look of an Albemarle County, Virginia, guestroom (opposite, bottom).

MARGERIE WEDDERBURN INTERIORS, LLC

Margery Wedderburn Interiors, LLC (MWI), is a high-end interior design firm whose clients' needs and desires come first. The firm is dedicated to delivering exceptional levels of design expertise, inspiration and value that far exceed clients' expectations. Wedderburn and her team use a positive, fun approach and a fresh, intuitive design vision to accomplish their goals.

"We get to know our clients and then provide a close collaboration to develop their design vision," principal Margery Wedderburn explains. "They are required to do 'homework' at the beginning, both to help us figure out their style and to help them decide what they want as well. Then, with so much knowledge about our clients the rest of it is intuition!" She adds, "We make sure our clients are absolutely and completely happy with the results. They are the ones who will live there, not us."

Wedderburn lived all over the country as a child, which she feels gives her an edge on understanding various decorative styles. "My mother was an antiques dealer, so we were always going to antiques shows and stores," she recalls. "We also traveled extensively, and these experiences helped to open and then solidify my design vision."
